

BUCHAREST CAPTURED IS REPORT

BERLIN DISPATCH ANNOUNCES TAKING OF RUMANIAN CAPITAL BY TONIC FORCES.

OTHER BATTLES FOUGHT

Russians Admit Being Forced to Retreat from Their Positions Which They Recently Gained.

Berlin, Dec. 6.—It is officially announced this afternoon that Bucharest has been captured by the Tonic forces. Details are not given in the official statement.

Ploesti, thirty-three miles north of Bucharest, an important railroad junction point, is also reported as in the hands of the central powers, after a long fight.

Tells of Fighting. With the German Armies before Bucharest, Monday, December 5, by Couriers, Hermannstadt and Winesburg Associated Press, via Bayville, Dec. 6.—The armies of Field Marshal Von Mackensen and General Von Puckmeyer, after a campaign the rapidity of which has been unparalleled in military history, have swept through half of Rumania, have crushed resistance of Rumanians at one strong point, and have now having driven Russo-Rumanian forces beyond Bucharest, both to north and south of the capital, are sending their tentacles on the Rumanian city from three sides.

Are Demoralized. The seeming demoralization of the Rumanian troops would, in the opinion of German military officers, make it possible to capture the fortress of a desperate venture. The Germans, with the aid of Austro-Hungarians, Bulgarians and Turks, have battered their way through the defenses of Bucharest, within a short time. They have breached the natural fortifications of the Transylvania mountains and the Danube river, and have swept their way through the strongest kind of scientific defenses, previously prepared long in advance.

They have thrown hundreds of thousands of men back in such disorder that even apparently impenetrable positions such as those along the rivers Alt and Argosch could not be held more than a few hours.

Cross River. The line of the Argeche River, with its flooded, dashing torrents 300 yards to a quarter of a mile wide, forming a natural defense, appeared to be so strong that the Germans themselves expected this last line of defense before Bucharest would require a siege.

On Macedonian Front. Paris, Dec. 6.—Further progress has been made by the Franco-Serbian forces on the Macedonian front, the war office announced today. During yesterday's fighting prisoners to the number of 2500 were taken. Active engagement is in progress north of Monastir.

Quiet on Belgian Line. London, Dec. 6.—Following is the official Belgian front: "Aside from intermittent enemy shelling in the Ancre area, there was nothing to report."

Russians Retire. Petrograd, Dec. 6.—A further retirement of the Rumanians in the Ploesti-Ploesti sector, northwest of Bucharest, and along the railway from Titu to Bucharest, is announced in today's official statement. Elsewhere the Tonic forces were beaten back.

Tells of Battle. Berlin, Dec. 6.—Russian troops again attacked yesterday in the Carpathian forest north of Tartar Pass and on the Ludowa front. The new assaults of the Russians brought them no success.

The Russians made a strong attack in the Trous valley, and succeeded in reaching the German second position north of Oluf Pass, a Russian point of support, was captured.

German Advance. Field Marshal Von Mackensen's forces, advancing vigorously, approached the railway line running northward from Bucharest to Ploesti, causing the Rumanians to evacuate their positions north of Ploesti. South of Bucharest the Tonic forces have occupied other towns along the river Alt, and are advancing toward the Rumanian capital.

More than 2000 Rumanians were captured yesterday.

Bulgarians Active. Bulgarian troops on the Macedonian front succeeded in driving out Serbian troops who had entered a portion of the Bulgarian position east of the Cerna, the war office announced today.

DENIES THAT ALLIES ARE EAGER TO DRAG GREECE INTO WAR

Premier Boselli Makes Statement in Address Before Italian Deputies —Sees Bright Italian Prospects.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Rome, Dec. 6.—The allies do not desire to force Greece into war, nor do they support any anti-dynastic movement in Greece, Premier Boselli asserted in his report on the war delivered before the chamber of deputies today. Premier Boselli reiterated the determination of Italy to maintain the war with her allies until the restoration of Belgium, Serbia and Montenegro was accomplished. He termed this "the noble and essential object of the war."

In the close of his speech, he sent a message of greeting to "our valorous Latin sister, Rumania," trusting for her final success. As a proof that Italy was prepared to push her operations vigorously, the premier announced that there were now 2,200 factories working on war material, the workers being one-third women, whose participation was increasing daily. He declared that victory would insure the equilibrium on the eastern Mediterranean, which he termed one of the chief foundations of Italian policy. He said that Valona would be Italy's strategic port on the Adriatic, from which would radiate her future commercial expansion in the Balkans.

The speaker protested against the dismemberment of Poland, which he said was confirmed by the action of the central powers against the restoration of Belgium, the bombardment of open towns, and sinking of steamers carrying peaceful and unarmed passengers.

NO HOPE FOR PEACE SAYS BERLIN PAPER

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Amsterdam, Dec. 6.—The Berlin Vorwaerts, the organ of the German socialists, in an article headed "Peace Blind," throws cold water on those who believe that peace is near. "We must be reconciled to the bitter truth that our enemies are too deeply pledged to their war aims to see anything but a complete peace," the paper says.

The worst calamities are not to be spared the European people; but one consolation remains, and that is that harsh rulers who rule for the sake of power, and who do not achieve anything, our enemies do not admit their failure."

MAN NOTORIOUS FOR ROBBING WOMEN IS HELD IN NEW YORK

MAN NOTORIOUS FOR CLAIMS TO BE THE "OLIVER OSBORNE" WHO HAS SWINDLED MANY WOMEN BY PROMISES TO MARRY.

New York, Dec. 6.—Charles H. Wax, many of many aliases, who says he is the "Oliver Osborne" who made love to Rae Tanzer, a New York socialite, has been held in New York and has answered many questions put to him by the police. He is awaiting trial here for grand larceny.

Now, the notoriety of the problem in the trial of Rae Tanzer, who is accused of using the mails to defraud, as a result of investigations which allowed her $50,000 of her promise suit against James W. Osborne, former United States district attorney.

She claimed James W. was the "Oliver Osborne" who promised to marry her. It was shown he was not, several other "Oliver Osbornes" showed up, but none was the man who wooed Rae, she said.

Must Answer Charge. Wax, the man charged, it will be shown that Charles H. Wax, the real "Oliver," and Rae were in a "conspiracy" of women.

Officers charge Wax began as a young man, who pretended he was a millionaire, and when he could not get their money in that manner he would go through a legal case against them.

"Oh, anybody can do it. It's just like anything else; it takes application. Each woman, of course, presented a special problem. Sometimes I kept the few feminine types mentally indexed. There is not much difference between them, you know."

Had "Em" Osbornes. "If one woman did not seem to be working why, it was just like reaching into a pigeon-hole for another formula."

"Any woman can be won by any man who tackles the job in the right way."

"I usually proposed to a woman at the first meeting, sometimes five minutes after we had met. Sometimes it took it to wait two hours."

"With the women the clothes made the man. I always dress well. I get an $11 suit of clothes, a pair of socks, a walking stick and a chrysanthemum or a rose in the buttonhole. A get-up like that will make a waiter or bartender look like a millionaire."

Charles H. Wax was identified at the United States district attorney's office here today by James W. Osborne, a New York socialite, with Edw. Wilcox, an assistant in his office, as "Oliver Osborne," the man who won the affections of Rae Tanzer.

Osborne, a former newspaper man, shaking hands cordially with him. The lawyer had entered the room a few minutes before, but at the time he had made no signs of recognizing the man.

"I was told I could speak to you now," said Osborne, place his hand on a friendly manner on Wax's shoulder. "I am glad to see you. I want you to know am the best friend you have in the world."

Wilcox, who corroborated the statement of an assistant in Osborne's office who saw "Oliver Osborne," when the latter visited Osborne, told him he was the woe of Rae Tanzer. Miss Tanzer, who brought suit against him for breach of promise.

The long missing "Oliver" in turn identified Mr. and Mrs. Wax. He had Wilcox as a witness to whom he had told him he was the woe of Rae Tanzer. Miss Tanzer, who brought suit against him for breach of promise.

Some observers in the room thought Wax bore a resemblance to Osborne, a striking likeness between the two at three-quarters view. District Attorney Marshall said, however:

"It is indeed that would get Wax mixed up with James W. Osborne." It was planned to bring others to meet him, but Mr. Wax, who is a native of New York, to conduct the case, among them his landlady and some of the victims of his alleged swindling operations and love affairs.

It was said that Mr. Wax, who would not see him unless she requested it.

DEFICIENCY IN REVENUE IS FORESEEN

McADOO'S ANNUAL REPORT PRE-DICTS GOVERNMENT WILL BE $185,000,000 SHORT IN 1918.

PROSPERITY IS MARKED

United States Has Been Elevated to Commanding Position in World Finance—Praises Federal Reserve System.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Dec. 6.—Secretary McAdoo's annual report of the government's finances, presented to congress today, estimates that the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1917, will show a balance of $185,000,000 in the general fund, but that the figures a year later—June 30th, 1918, will show a deficit in the general fund of $185,000,000.

Preliminary estimates place the cost of conducting the government for the coming fiscal year, 1918, exclusive of the postal service which is expected to be self sustaining and covering the ordinary receipts for the fiscal year, he estimates at $996,550,000, which is $282,471,000 less than the estimated expenditure.

Estimates of large expenditures for national defense carry the estimated outlay beyond the estimated income.

Sees Growing Prosperity. For the fiscal year 1918, the drawing of the secretary's report predicts prosperity and expresses great confidence for the future. "During the past year," the secretary says, "the prosperity which began in 1915 has grown in strength and volume and is now widely diffused throughout the United States. Fundamental economic conditions have never been more sound. In all lines of industry efficiency of organization and production have reached the highest point in the country's history. General prosperity and in the healthiest enterprise and in the development have been marked characteristics of the year."

"The financial strength of the United States, which has been a source of pride and a commanding position in world finance. We have been transformed from a debtor into a creditor nation. On November 1st, 1916, the stock of gold in the treasury was $136,976, an increase of $714,597,804 in the past sixteen months. This is the largest stock of gold in any other country in the world. Through the operations of the Federal Reserve system and without abundant supply of gold as the basis for the credit resources of the United States have become more than sufficient for home demand, and we have been able to finance our great domestic and foreign trade without resorting to extend vast amounts of credit to other nations throughout the world."

Praises Reserve System. "The experience of the past two years has brought into strong relief the value of the Federal Reserve system. It is not too much to say that our great prosperity is due to the system. The usefulness of the system has been broadened recently by the amendment of September 7, 1916, which renders it more effective in the scope of services of the federal vault and other reserves to federal reserve banks, authorized by the act to make an advance on the real estate of said banks are now more than $650,000,000, while the total reserves held are over $400,000,000, in addition, more than $200,000,000 held by federal reserve agents as deposits of security against federal reserve notes. About one-fourth of the country's stock of gold is thus mobilized in the hands of the federal reserve banks and agents."

The increasing strength and efficiency of the federal reserve banks have enabled them to enlarge their direct service to the business community through the introduction of a definite and comprehensive system for the par clearance of checks throughout the country.

Discount at federal reserve banks have continued low throughout the year, and most of their open-market paper, consisting largely of acceptances drawn below a two and one-half cent basis. Rates of interest throughout the country have been reduced.

The visitors arrived in two special cars at Asquith station at six o'clock, and were breakfasted at the station dining room and at restaurants in the vicinity. They nearly swamped the food vendors in that part of Madison.

The women were taken in charge by the home economics department of the university and entertained separately.

BIG CROWD ENJOYS METHODIST SUPPER

Chicken Pie Is Principal Dish of Elaborate Menu Served in Cafeteria Style.

About three hundred people enjoyed the delicious supper served on last evening at the Methodist church. The main dish was chicken pie, which was flanked by entrees of all kinds. The novelty of the cafeteria service seemed to find high favor, and the ease with which the large crowd was handled was certainly in its favor. Fourteen ladies presiding over the service tables and six or eight in the kitchen comprised the force necessary to care for the guests.

From half past five until well toward eight o'clock the small tables were filled with people. Many gentlemen were present and several groups of ladies drifted in for the cream and cake who did not care for a full meal. A card containing a list of prices was prominently displayed and patrons paid for what was desired. A hearty lunch of baked beans, rolls, coffee and doughnuts could be obtained for 15 cents. The more aristocratic chicken pie, mashed potato and gravy for 25 cents.

Mrs. Belle Dixon was in charge of the very efficient arrangements of the dining room. A very profitable sale was reported from the booths in charge of the ladies of the Aid society. Each booth held the work contributed by a special circle of workers. There are seven of these in the society, comprising in all about 260 members. Aprons, bags, home baking goods and candy comprised much of the stock displayed, together with fancy work and novelties of all kinds. A pleasant social hour was enjoyed by the crowd, which came and went informally.

INCREASING DIVORCE ALARMING TO JAPAN

Tokio, Dec. 6.—In proportion to its population Japan leads the world in divorce, according to statistics just compiled by government officials. A great number of separations come about immediately after marriage. Whereas in England the proportion of divorce is only two to every 20,000 marriages and in the United States it is eight to two, in Japan there are no fewer than 173 divorces to every 20,000 marriages. Most of the divorces recorded have been brought about by "mutual consent" and through the efforts of go-betweens responsible for the original union. They were accomplished without submission to court or law. Out of the 123,000 divorces which were effected between 1883 and 1902 only 409 cases were obtained by law suits.

The divorce report says: "This remarkable state of affairs is attributable to the fact that ideas of individual rights and obligations as well as knowledge and experience of the law are but scantily developed in the minds of the Japanese people. But since the Japanese women are now growing in the consciousness of their dignity and rights we hear now and then of cases of women fighting for divorces in the courts of law."

In conclusion the report urges stricter regulations, pointing out the general tendency in the civilized world is toward gradual diminution of divorce and that the proportion in Japan is becoming alarming.

COMMUNITY IDEA IN STREET DECORATIONS

Main Streets of City Already Take on Gaily Appearance in Preparation for Dedication of Lights.

With the rubs of eight foot evergreens standing on the curb line of the downtown business district as the preliminary step to the decorations for the formal dedication of the new street lighting system, the windows of the various stores taking on a Christmassy appearance, all that is needed is a flurry of snow to make it ideal holiday weather.

The community idea of decorating the streets of the city with trees is a novel one and is part of the program planned by the Commercial club for December 14th, when proper exercises will be held at the Myers theatre and the new stager light system formally presented to the citizens by the committee of the Commercial club having his work in charge is headed by Edward Amerpohl, chairman, and the distribution of the trees began on Tuesday under his supervision.

In past years there has been a community Christmas tree in the Court House park that has been lighted around which choruses have been sung and the young and old enjoyed the novelty of. With the present plan there is one continuous row of evergreens from the Court House park to First street, on Main, and from Division to Academy and even to the Northwestern depot itself. It is a divided Christmas and it presents plans are carried out these trees will be lighted with tiny lights while the new street lights shed their brilliance over the whole scene.

Owing to the time taken for the decorations the first steps have been taken at this early date for already Christmas shopping is well along, and as Janesville invites the entire county to come and enjoy a holiday spirit and take part in the program on December 14th, it was thought well to have the trees in place first.

The feature address of the evening's celebration on the fourteenth of this month will be that of T. N. Witten, in which he will discuss the problems and methods of community building. Mr. Witten is a member of the City band, Mayor Fathers will make the dedicatory speech in which he will officially present the new lights to the citizens of Janesville. The committee in charge further plans to have a supper for the members of the Commercial club, who will give a brief resume of its activities and interests in community work.

CHEESE FESTIVAL AT MONROE THURSDAY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Monroe, Wis., Dec. 6.—Each year since the manufacture of cheese has been an important industry in Green county, a festival has been held at the close of the season for the benefit of the cheesemakers and their families. The festivities annually consist of a "Schwingfest," or wrestling contest in the afternoon, with dancing at night. This year will be no exception to the rule, and the annual festival will be held on Thursday.

Already there is a pleasing list of entrants for the wrestling matches, for which liberal cash prizes will be awarded. In addition, one will be crowned "king of the wrestlers," and will hold this title until the next annual "Schwingfest." Among those who have won honors in the past are "Schwing-Koenigs" are Ametzberger, Hirschbrunner, Scheutz, Amstutz, Hachlen, Schuerch, Alplanner, Stadelmann, Baumgartner and Schmidt.

In past years the "Schwingfest" has been held under the auspices of the Cheesemakers' association (Kaserverein) but since that organization disbanded the Securitas Verein, a branch of the fraternal order G. U. G. Germania has taken charge. The festival a new feature has been added this year, the committee in charge of the festival having engaged the "Schuhplattler Gesellschaft Almenrasen," a troupe of Alpine dancers and singers, who will give an exhibition. The festival will close with a dance in the evening, dancing continuing until the sun comes peep over the distant hills. As has been the custom in Switzerland since time immemorial, and as those in attendance depart for their homes from all directions will be heard the famous yodel song.

"ANTIS" HAVE INNING MEET AT WASHINGTON

Washington, Dec. 6.—The "antis" had their inning today when 1,000 members of the National Association Opposed to Woman's Suffrage convened here.

The immediate objective—the defeat of the national woman suffrage movement—is going to be more or less relegated to discussion along these lines.

Ex-President William Howard Taft, Elihu Root, William Cabot Lodge, Charles W. Elliott and Lyman Abbott have been invited to attend the banquet. Mrs. Lansing, Mabel Boardman, Ida M. Tarbell and Kate Douglas Wiggin are present.

Although no program had been arranged, the spontaneous enthusiasm made the occasion a delightful one. Milton's band of music was in evidence and much enjoyed. Reminiscences of the past were indulged in but the general attitude of the meeting was forward toward the new day upon which the school is entering. Eloquent tributes were paid by eminent men to Milton's thoroughness, culture, democracy and moral and spiritual power. The world's positive need of such a school was

PEACE RUMORS.

In commenting upon the frequent peace rumors the Wall Street Journal takes occasion to say that it is idle to say that throughout the terrible conflict now raging in Europe there has been in the United States an attitude lacking in ability, or even in appreciation of the causes, conduct and consequences of the war. In nothing is this so clearly shown as in the depression in markets generally produced by the latest rumor of peace. It is to be remembered that these markets are, and how much more they represent than the mere locality in which they are situated.

Cotton means the most important section of the South. Wheat means the farmer. Stocks upon an aggregate of traders in all parts of the United States. The anxiety to profit by the war and the general failure to appreciate its terrible reality is not a charge to be laid against that national seaport, wicked Wall Street. It is certain, in fact, that the best thought of Wall Street has had a more complete appreciation of the facts than any other locality. Westinghouse, least of all. Peace rumors come along and register themselves in price fluctuations. But illusions as to their value are much more widely spread in Ohio, in the West and the South, where the glorious motto of "Safety First" dictates the presidential vote.

Peace is not in sight for the reason that no common ground has been established upon which the fighting powers can come together. The Central Powers have entirely failed to show that they have realized what the allies are fighting for; and, equally, the allies have repudiated the German point of view, which has not been modified in any respect by the utterances of the German chancellor, or even of Maximilian Harden, or others who are at least trying to understand that universal public opinion which the German militarist party has consistently treated with contempt.

Worship broken need upon which the flexible pacifist is leaning is the mediation of President Wilson. Strip the international civilities down to reality, there is perhaps no one in public life in the world today who is regarded with more contempt in the countries now at war. At least they are fighting bravely, and giving up all that makes life dear. Their attitude towards cowardice, openly professed and as nearly consistent as Mr. Wilson can ever be, is not pleasant to reflect upon.

It will satisfy those ignoble souls who are growing rich upon the sorrows of Europe, it may be said that the conditions precedent to peace do not yet exist. It is true that there is plenty of pretentious writing on the pacifist side. But all that can be said is that the wish is father to the thought. We have failed to understand the facts because we have feared to face them. Our hysterical exaggeration of the importance of death blinds us to matters infinitely greater. Until we come out of that daze of well-fed ease we shall not recover our sense of proportion.

WOMEN ON FARMS.

The sight of women doing agricultural labor used to be considered an un-American one. It was thought that our chivalry would not permit this form of feminine toil. A dispatch from Great Falls, Montana, though, tells how many women are helping their husbands thresh. It is easy to see how the women on many farms the wives and daughters and sisters were busy all through November at this task. This is evidently a typical condition that could be duplicated in many other localities.

In districts where there is a large alien population, the sight of women working in the fields is no new one. The Germans of Europe are used to field labor on the part of both sexes. Their women come over here far stronger and more wholesome than American girls, indicating that they are none the worse for their laborious toil.

Any family can get along where the women are willing to take hold with their own hands at the work of cultivation and harvest. It is easy to see how the foreigners pay off the mortgages on their farms. But it does not follow that the American born woman must thereby be expected to take off her apron and put on the overalls of a farm hand.

In the newly arrived immigrant family, the wife may be doing the very best thing when she gets out and helps her husband gain his first foothold. No doubt there are many American born women who are doing just the same, and it is vastly to their credit. The objection to it is not so much physical as educational and domestic.

On the health side most women would be better for outdoors work. If they took time to break into it gradually, but it is just the same question as whether married women shall leave their homes to work in factories and offices. If they are to spend their time digging and delving for money, things at home must go undone. The cookery will be at loose ends, and the children ragged and untrained. It is quite possible to pay too high a price even for a good bank account and an unmortgaged home.

THE SPIRIT OF ENTERPRISE.

It is an interesting problem in business psychology to determine why people will go to one store to trade rather than to another. It is not wholly a matter of the personality of the proprietor and his assistants, nor of the goods sold. When a person quits his home town and goes off to trade somewhere else, he does not commonly buy the same article any cheaper. But something in the distant place seems more alluring.

Of course the relation of a store to the cost of living is perhaps the biggest factor. Prices come home closer to the modern family than anything else. When a woman reads that a $2.00 shirtwaist can be bought for $1.33, nothing in the paper interests her so much. If she gets an idea that a certain place sells cheaper, she will patronize it, and you can't pry her loose from it.

A great many stores win trade by giving an impression that they have enterprise. They spread abroad the idea that they have the spirit of hustle. There is nothing that the American can temperance give more than this. If a man can give the idea that he is wide awake, people like to do business with him. They have confidence that he has been alert to get the best values in the market, and can afford to sell the same article cheaper.

The American people have little use for inactivity. They care little for the business man who sits down and waits for trade to come to him. They respect and have faith in the man who gets out and hustles for business.

The one way to give this impression of enterprise and hustle is to advertise. Personal solicitation from door to door might accomplish the same result only it would cost twenty times as much. The newspaper advertisements are hustling for business, they are wide awake and keen to pick up the opportunities that are going, at the most favorable terms. The American public like to do business with that type of merchant.

LOCATIONS AND TRADE.

There are always some merchants who think they can win out as a result of the favorable location of their store. They are so situated that an unusual number of people pass by. Also they have held the same position for many years, and they think people are used to finding their way inside.

But if they would count the number of people who pass and those who enter, they would be surprised to see how small a proportion they get. They need to do something else besides sitting down passively by the side of the thoroughfare.

Also it is surprising how easily a store in an unfavorable place can be made to go out of their way if they can thereby get an advantage in buying. They boast to each other of the new place they have found where goods can be bought to better advantage. It only takes a little advertising, just a few announcements of bargains, and just a little giving the impression of hustle to divert the trade current.

Paul Richards, the young high school senior, who took up the work of the boys' secretary at the Y. M. C. A. until that organization could obtain the services of a man qualified to fill the position, demonstrated his ability to such an extent that his future is assured. Mr. Richards did his Y. M. C. A. work outside of school hours and his influence upon the boys came in contact with has shown itself in the interest they are taking in the association.

One of the surest indications that the Christmas season is fast approaching is the appearance of the Red Cross stamp. The sale of these little stickers creates a fund that does a wonderful work in the country in fighting the tubercular germs.

England is facing a cabinet crisis that bids fair to revolutionize the conduct of the war from the English point of view. It is something like an election in states where various parties change offices every so often.

Knitting socks and mittens is no longer a lost art. It has become quite a fashionable fad in society circles and the results are forwarded to the European fighting zone where it is hoped they accomplish some good.

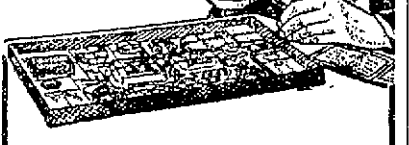

Now the football season is ended the basketball time has arrived. Janesville fans are pricking up their ears and waiting and watching for another record-breaking combination both at the high school and in the city five.

The Christmas tree effect upon the streets, part of the holiday decoration scheme projected by the Commercial club, should inspire everyone with the true Christmas spirit and hasten the shop early campaign.

How generous it is of the brokers to spend so much money trying to sell mining and other stocks, when if the stocks are so good they could so easily get rich by hanging on to them themselves!

Oh, every heart hath its sorrow,

When the birds go South again.

Hickey Sloovers, the village's bashfullest, planned a chrysanthemum in his nearest buttonhole, saturated his hair and handkerchief with bay rum, and faro forth to propose to Jane Shrimp, the village's next bashfullest.

The moon was shining brightly, and there must have been dozens of stars in the sky.

Hickey and Jane took a long walk over Simmines meadows, past the mill, down by the corset works and back over Simmines meadows again. At last Hickey found his voice.

"Well, Jane," he said, taking the chrysanthemum nervously from his buttonhole and putting it in his back pocket, "I pose—I suppose you'll be getting—ah—married like—some of these here days."

"Oh, I dunno. I guess, maybe, like," replied Jane, blowing her nose girlishly.

"I guess I'll—I'll get married, too."

"Praps—praps—ha ha—we both might get married together, like!"

"Oh. At the same time?"

"Yuh. Oh, wouldn't it be funny if—the parson should make a mistake, like, and marry us to each other?"

"I—oh—I don't care."

TWO DUELS IN BUENOS AIRES;
CUSTOM NOW OUT OF DATE

Buenos Aires, Dec. 5.—Two duels have just been fought here. The Argentine custom of settling disputes by the sword is still in vogue, and the general opinion seems to be that this sort of thing is out of date in the new world. The system continues to prevail, however, in certain circles.

One of the two sword fights was between Ramon Athos de San Malato, an Italian, and Anibal Rodriguez, an Argentine with a reputation as a swordsman. In the other the opponent was Don Pedro Moreno, a member of the Argentine house of representatives, and Dr. Honorio Sarmiento, a lawyer and an Argentine, fought to a draw.

In the former case honor was adjudged to have been satisfied when Rodriguez had been forced backward to the barrier without being hurt, a point which is understood to have pleased him more than it would to have been killed. Moreno was injured in a duel here for several years, but nothing would be done about it, probably, if someone were killed.

Hardy had at first considered the signatures forged. But examination with a microscope had shown him that the thumb prints were identical with those on the memorandum of the proceedings of the tribal council. He had been quick to perceive that his only chance of defeating the outrageous contract was to bring about either an executive or a congressional investigation. There had been no difficulty in dividing the manner in which Vandervyn had obtained the signatures at the tribal council.

Yet so far his every move had been blocked. He had interested one man of official position or influence after another, only to be met later with evasion or procrastination or even outright rebuffs. One door after another had been shut in his face. At last he had found himself regarded as a crank, than which, in Washington, no more opprobrious term can be applied to a man.

The Fact Was Bruited About That He Was to Be Court-Martialed.

With the opening of congress the influences opposed to him had at last been able to overcome the opposition that had delayed a trial of the charges against him. The afternoon that he came back to his shabby lodgings after a final attempt to obtain an interview with the chief of the Indian bureau, he was officially notified to appear the following morning for trial by court-martial.

He already knew the charges against him. They included desertion, failure to report at Vancouver barracks and, under the head of conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman, his contempt of the developed mine.

The nervousness of the trial brought matters to a desperate pass with him. He must act quickly.

It was the night of the first ball at the White House. As usual, there was a great crush. Hardy, in conventional evening dress—not in official costume, as the regulations required—managed in some mysterious manner to obtain entrance. The secret-service men had no instructions with regard to him, and considerable time passed before anyone inimical to him heeded his unobtrusive presence.

He, in turn, was so intent upon maneuvering to have himself spoken to by that most genial of hosts, the president, that he failed to see Marie until she spoke to him. The first sight of her bewildered him, and his bow did not altogether hide the effects of the delicious shock given him by her dazzling beauty. But he quickly recovered his self-possession when he saw that she was with Vandervyn.

That young man, though more boyishly handsome than ever, bore himself with rather a sullen air. He met Hardy's clear gaze with a forced smile. The smile became still more forced when the girl transferred her hand from his arm to Hardy's.

"Only a very few minutes," she soothed the disappointed lover.

"Whatever you say!" he deferred to her caprice, and he drew back to speak to a sharp-eyed man near the president.

Hardy was gazing into the wonderful blue-black eyes of his companion. They were as inscrutable as when he had last looked into their depths. He tried to speak calmly, but his voice shook.

"Do you know that you are by far the most beautiful woman here?" Her long lashes drooped and rose again to disclose the same inscrutable look.

"So I have been told several times already—I wished a few moments with you, that I might thank you for your generosity. It has given me the great opportunity of my trip abroad and this visit in Washington."

"I am saving all the reports of your social triumphs," he said. "They have made me very happy."

Again the girl's lashes drooped. "That is good of you—It is quite necessary for me to become the rage—if I am to force a recognition from Reggie's relatives. He says that, fortunately, his fiancée has become interested in another man who is quite as eligible as himself."

Hardy's eyes contracted, yet he did not falter:

"Since it will bring you happiness, I wish him—good fortune."

"You do?" The question was almost an exclamation. But the girl at once regained her quiet composure. "I do not understand. If you wish him good fortune, why then do you seek to prevent him from receiving his compensation as attorney for the tribe?"

"I said good fortune," replied Hardy. "Any money paid him on that contract would be tainted."

Marie arched her black eyebrows. "Is it not true that he will get through a much larger appropriation than otherwise would have been made?"

"The lands are fully worth the amount agreed upon," stated Hardy. "The tribe should receive all the appropriation. Honest lobbying would carry the bill through at a cost of a few hundred dollars. These supposed friends of the tribe want millions."

"Do you wish to deprive me of the share that I would receive through him?"

"Yes—of every dishonest dollar," said Hardy, his mouth stern, though his eyes besought her to forgive his harshness. "You have enough already."

"Are you certain?" she rejoined. "You may have heard that mines often pinch out or run into valueless ore—You can guess why Pere and I have told no one, least of all Reggie."

Hardy remained unshaken. "If he is worthy of you, that will make no difference to him."

"But myself? I am already used to luxury," pleaded the girl.

"Down to your heart you know the values in life that are real," he said. "You do not wish for wealth gained through fraud."

"I have not admitted that there is any fraud in the contract," he remarked. "Perhaps it is as well," he remarked. "You should not doubt your future husband."

She flashed him an odd, quizzical look. "No, I cannot doubt my future husband now, Captain Hardy. I must believe in him if I am to be happy, must I not?"

"Yes," agreed Hardy.

She uttered a gay little trill of laughter.

"That is so good of you to say it, Captain! It makes me feel that I really must do something for you in return. May I not offer you a little loan of, say, three or four thousand dollars? I understand that, for some strange reason—or unreason—you have refused your pay as captain."

"My resignation has not been withdrawn, and I am engaged in a private enterprise. I cannot draw pay as an officer in the service," explained Hardy.

"Few would be so quixotic," she argued. "Most would make the excuse that an attempt to frustrate what they considered a wrong to others is not to be considered a private enterprise."

"I must beg to differ with you, Miss Dupont."

"Then let it pass. But the little loan?"

"Very good of you to offer. However, I believe I have enough left to last me through. And in any event, I could not impose on your generosity. The money would be used against him—which, you see, would hardly do."

"Then you refuse any loan?"

"It was most kind of you to make the offer."

"Don Quixote de la Mancha," she murmured.

"Tilting at machine windmills," he replied. Though there was no trace of bitterness or satire in his wit, her chin lifted to the angle of offended pride. "That is sufficient, Captain Hardy. May I ask you to take me back to him?"

I Could Not Impose on Your Generosity.

Vandervyn was waiting for her near the president. As they approached him, she gave Hardy a look of half-reluctance. "You must understand, Captain, that I must do as my heart dictates, though I confess that lobbying is far from agreeable to me. I have already met his excellency, and he has been so kind as to promise me a hearing."

"I cannot wish you success," he replied. She gave him a quizzical glance and turned away with Vandervyn.

Standing in the eager, jostling crowd that waited for a word or even a nod from the president, he fully appreciated the ease with which, in the midst of so great a crush, she managed to obtain several moments' conversation apart with the nation's chief magistrate.

She was still beside the president when the sharp-eyed man to whom Vandervyn had spoken came around beside Hardy and murmured a few words in his ear. Hardy looked him in the eye, bowed, and quietly started to move away. The man followed him until he had left the White House.

CHAPTER XXV.

Condemned.

The court-martial began its session at nine in the morning, and the trial of Hardy was over before three in the afternoon. Vandervyn testified to the suppression by the accused of the existence of the developed mine and of Redbear's misconduct.

Hardy's statements in explanation of his actions were as brief as they were cold and dry. Acting as a civil officer, he had considered the question of withholding any mention of the mine as a matter within his discretion.

When interrogated whether he had not taken advantage of this suppression to enter the contest and win the mine for himself, his bald admission of the fact, unaccompanied by any explanation of his motives, was received by his other judges with marked gravity.

The other charges were far more serious, and he opposed them with vigor. He denied emphatically any intention to desert or to remain permanently absent from his proper duties without leave, and showed the telegram from a high official in the war department that led him to believe his resignation and application for leave of absence would be at once favorably acted upon by his commanding officer at Vancouver barracks. This, in some circumstances, might have been considered sufficient excuse for his conduct. But his refusal to explain his reason for taking advantage of his secret knowledge of the mine perceptibly influenced the members of the court to doubt the statement of his purpose in coming to Washington.

Though the court-martial adjourned without rendering its findings, he left the courtroom ten years older in appearance than when he entered. The regretful, commiserating glance of the most friendly of his judges seemed plainly to indicate what would be the findings. The thought of voluntarily resigning from the service had been hard. To be cashiered was almost unendurable.

Yet he walked out with his back straight and his head well up. He went directly to the White House and sent for a written application for an interview with the president. It was refused. He went to his lodgings and spent the remainder of the day and half the night drafting and redrafting a concise statement of his argument against Vandervyn's contract. This he addressed to the president and stamped for mailing. He wrote nothing with regard to his own case.

When, near morning, he at last fell asleep, he was so near exhaustion that he did not waken until late. The hour set for the reconvening of the court-martial had already come. He sprang into his uniform with a celerity that might have reminded a fellow officer of reveille in cadet barracks at West Point.

A Great Discovery

Swollen, hands, ankles, feet are due to a dropsical condition, often caused by disordered kidneys. Naturally when the kidneys are deranged the blood is filled with poisonous waste matter, which settles in the feet, ankles and wrists; or under the eyes in bag-like formations.

As a remedy for those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation caused by uric acid—as scalding urine, backache and frequent urination, as well as sediment in the urine, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gout, it is simply wonderful how quickly Anuric acts; the pains and stiffness rapidly disappear.

Take a glass of hot water before meals and Anuric, the discovery of Dr. Pierce of Buffalo.

Step into a drug store and ask for Anuric, many times more potent than lithia and eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar.

A WISCONSIN WOMAN SAYS.

Madison, Wis.—"There is no better tonic than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I was working in a store some years ago and the confinement, together with the work, would cause me to get run-down. The 'Discovery' would always build me up in just a short time. I have also found Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets to be equally good. I once used the 'Favorite Prescription' for woman's weakness, doctors did not help. I was ailing for about two years with this trouble and the 'Prescription' cured me in six months and no trouble since."—Mrs. Mary Johnson, S. S. Blair Street.

"Leave the room!" And Johnny left, crying as he went: "I was only going to say that he had his army clothes on."

An eastern publisher is credited with a unique criticism of a story-teller who had begun promisingly, but soon degenerated into the lowest type of "best seller." "This contemporary biography," said the publisher, "can be compromised within two questions and answers thus: 'How did he begin writing?' 'With a wealth of thought.' 'How did he continue?' 'With a thought of wealth.'"

Relief Comes For Slippy

POOR LITTLE SLIPPY! She thought her time had come for sure! She thought no wonder! I guess anyone would think that, if they were held in the claw of a cruel hawk, high above the ground and no help in sight. But, fortunately, there often help coming—even if we cannot see it. Slippy was to be saved.

Off in the corner of the cornfield was a Man-With-a-Gun who had come to the country to shoot rabbits. (Don't you hope that Topsy Cottontail remembers that hunting season is on and that he must be careful (I do.) While he was waiting for a rabbit to show up he thought he would take a few practice shots. And right then Mr. Hawk flew up above the trees with Slippy held tight in his claws.

Now the Man-With-a-Gun didn't see Slippy, nor did he hear Slippy's cries for help, but he did see Mr. Hawk. "There's a shot for me," he said to himself, and "BANG!" went the gun. Mr. Hawk was hit. Slippy knew that right away, for Mr. Hawk relaxed his tight hold on Slippy and down the little mouse fell—down—down—down to the branches of a great beech tree.

If Mr. Hawk had been above the open ground when he was hit by the hunter's bullet, Slippy would have fallen to

ONLY SMALL SQUAD OUT FOR VARSITY BASKETBALL TEAM

Meanwell Will Have Job Selecting Wisconsin Five Than Can Again Take Conference Honors.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Dec. 6.—Much interest is being taken by the student body in the game Saturday evening between Beloit and the University of Wisconsin basketball teams. This will mark the initial appearance of the Badgers this season with the result that many are anxious to get a look at the material which is being developed in the varsity squad this season. The team has been practicing over a month and are in fair condition for the game. Olsen, a veteran of three years is on the injured list and it is doubtful whether he will get into the Beloit game or not.

Dr. Meanwell has one of the smallest squads in years with which to work. During the past month since the trials have been held, he has had but two or three men out each day. This size of the squad shows the lack of material at the Badger institution. The students in spite of this drawback, are depending upon the coach to develop a winning combination which will win the conference title the same as they did last season when the conditions were much better. But two veterans and two substitutes returned to school this year for Dr. Meanwell to base his team upon. Captain Lewis will play one of the forwards with McIntosh, a new man, at the other forward. Olsen is a sure fixture at one of the guards, with Carlson or Hemming as his running mate. The choice of a center is a serious problem for the Badger coach. He has plenty of material for this place, but he cannot seem to get the right man. During the past two weeks he has been using Hemming and Carlson in addition to Pond at this place.

Paul Meyers, football captain, has appeared to try for the basketball team and has been working at one of the forwards. Carroll, Bauer and Farrington have also been given chances at the forward positions. Plenty of material for forwards is present, but good guards are scarce. Edler, the Jansville football star, has not appeared for work yet, and at present he is undecided as to whether he will take up the winter sport or not.

The game with Beloit should go a long way in determining the strength of the Badger men. Beloit is rated as having a fast team and will make the Wisconsin team play to win the game.

The nine-hundred-thousand-dollar suit by the directors of the Baltimore Federal league club is constantly becoming more irritating to some of our leading magnates. Especially is this suit a menace because of the brewing trouble with the fraternity and the rumors that Harry Sinclair's oil earnings may be used to put fresh life into the corpse of the Federal league. According to reports, Sinclair has added considerably to his wealth. But he will hold tighter to it than ever before and he never was a spendthrift, so the disgruntled Federal league men cannot expect any support from him. There is not a chance for the Baltimore club to get the fortune it asks, for even the former members of the defunct league will testify that their Baltimore colleagues are not entitled to anything, as they consented to all the peace terms and were kept alive by members of the league.

MORRIS MILLER

When it comes to getting in on the money, you just can't beat Joe Tinker. He was a 50-50 partner with the Peoria Three-I league club and that club cleared $2,500 on the season. Tinker got his half and divided it with Bill Jackson, who managed the team to a pennant. The partnership arrangement will be continued with Tinker next season.

If Fritz Malsel makes good on second base for the New York Yankees, and there is where Manager Bill Donovan intends to try him out, then Joe Gedeon will be put on the majors. If Gedeon is waived out of the majors, I Salt Lake stands ready to pay a fancy price, but Malsel hasn't made good at second as yet, so why discuss the subject?

The Chicago National league club is sure up against it. On the one hand the Coast league clubs are likely to refuse exhibition games in California and on the other the Tampa business men are likely to sue if the Cubs don't go back there to train. And still Wegman and his partners insist they will go to California. It's dollars to doughnuts they do not.

On the supposition that Rufus Gilbert will not return next year as manager of the Terre Haute Central league team, a boosting campaign has been started for Catcher Harry Martin as a successor. Martin has had some managerial experience and his admirers say he is the best choice possible in case Gilbert does take one of the various offers that have been made him to go elsewhere.

Charley Ebbets of the Brooklyn club, fooled by the unusually fine fall weather, is out again with his idea for extending the minor league season until mid-October, so he can get in Columbus day as a holiday. Doesn't he know that a fall like that is the present year comes only once in a decade? His scheme was tried once and everybody nearly died of pneumonia before the final games were played.

Hearing that there has been some trouble in refinancing the Chattanooga club of the Southern league, baseball interests in Knoxville have taken steps to appear before the coming Southern league meeting and make a bid for the franchise. There is no indication, however, that the Chattanooga fans will permit the Lookouts to leave town through Knoxville stands ready to pay a good price for the franchise.

The official pitching records of the National league in cold figures the remarkable achievements last season of Grover Cleveland Alexander, Kipin hurler of the old league and the Phillies' big gun. In the first place, Alex took part in forty-eight games, more than any other pitcher engaged, and he established a new shut-out record by whitewash-
